

Jōmon style pottery fragment (archeological)

Japanese Collection

|                       |                                                                                          |
|-----------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Accession Nr.:        | 9618.9  |
| Type:                 | archaeological artifacts                                                                 |
| Date of production:   | 10500 BC – 300 BCJōmon period                                                        |
| Place of production:  | Itoigawa, Niigata prefecture, Japan                                                      |
| Materials/Techniques: | earthenware                                                                              |
| Dimensions:           | width: 4 cmlength: 6 cm                                                              |

Found by Sōma Gyōfu poet (1917), who gave it to the poet and potter Uchishima Hokuro, who gifted it to Dr Tibor Horváth in 1942.

