

Bowl with with lotus and wave motifs

Chinese Collection

|                      |                                                                                       |
|----------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Accession Nr.:       | 600  |
| Type:                | vessel; object for daily use; pottery                                                 |
| Date of production:  | 12th–13th centuriesSong dynasty                                                   |
| Place of production: | Jiangxi province, China                                                               |
| Materials:           | porcelain                                                                             |
| Techniques:          | glazed; scratch                                                                       |
| Dimensions:          | height: 5.2 cmdiameter (mouth): 13.7 cmdiameter (base): 3.5 cm                |

The shape of this small bowl resembles to that of qingbai vessels. The bowl is decorated with incised motifs of lotuses and waves. The base and the base rim are left unglazed. Southern Song dynasty.

