

Archaeological material collected during the excavation of the "Ancient Merv", pottery fragment.

Mongolian Collection

|                     |                                                                                              |
|---------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Accession Nr.:      | 2011.74.52  |
| Type:               | ceramics; archaeological artifacts                                                           |
| Date of production: | no date                                                                                      |
| Materials:          | ceramics                                                                                     |
| Dimensions:         | width: 5 cmlength: 4.7 cm                                                                |

A fragment of the mouth of a vessel of yellowish-white clay, decorated with parallel convex lines.

