An outstanding piece of Mughal-era miniature painting. The picture shows the conventions of depicting the great ruler of the Mughal Empire, Aurangzeb (1618-1707), but according to the Devanagari inscription, the image depicts the grandson of Aurangzeb, the great mogul Bahadur Shah (1643-1712). On the front side of the picture a Devanagari inscription, on the verso, Devanagari and Urdu inscriptions are written. All inscriptions read Bahadur Shah Great Ruler. The caption on the front of the a date is given in Devanagari, which cannot be read completely: year 6 ???. The dating does not correspond to the historical dating of the Mughal Empire according to any Indian calendar.
